Comelec: No manual parallel count

By Kristine L. Alano

WITH 15 DAYS TO GO BEFORE THE COUNTRY EMBARKS on its first automated polls, the Commission on Elections (Comelec) declared the parallel manual count pushed by certain sectors as unnecessary and assured the public that all safeguards were in place for credible, accurate and swift voting on May 10.

"We are working 24/7 since it's crunch time already," Commissioner Gregorio Larrazabal said yesterday in a media briefing.

"This is the last two minutes of the preparation for the elections. Almost all Filipinos want the elections to proceed. The goal of the Comelec is to ensure a smooth process."

JC: We've gone this far, that's a miracle

By Jerome A. King

"MIRACLES" HAVE BEEN HAPPENING since the campaign began.

"We have survived this long, with all the challenges," said a 40-year-old congressman who has been elected to run for president instead of making money as a businessman, two other candidates of Kapuso are submitting to us, the youngest president-electable, the endorsements from the bishops, the press picking us up, aren't they miracles?" said John Carlos "JC" de los Reyes, standard-bearer of the faith-based Ang Kapuso Party (AKP).

The miracle of winning on May 10 will put him in the country's highest post where he can continue his "politics of evangelization."

"The fight is really difficult. But I expect to win, I really do. It's a miracle if I win," said De los Reyes, who took time out from his hectic campaign schedule on Thursday to visit the Inquirer with his running mate Dominador "Dom" Chigoso Jr., one of Ang Kapuso's seven regional candidates and top party officials. Willie Nep's reality hit bites: Palace beats 'Gut Talent'

OK, it's a bit messy.

What may decide the result of the upcoming presidential election is still so-called "specialized" open to media: actor Willie Nep's reality show patronized after a TV reality talent search.

THERE'S A GOOD REASON ELECTIONS are typically equated with the business of putting on a show. ("It's central time again!" barked the Inquirer headline on Feb. 18, at the start of the 2010 presidential campaign.)

Like theater, elections are all about presenting well-defined characters, creating and pushing a narrative (the poor boy who made good; the corrupt kid in the room; the guardian of the family legacy; the trained champion on a comeback; the, uh, "transformer"), sticking to a script but improvising if necessary shaping the drama.

JPE: I want to quiz Villar myself

By Christian R. Esguerra and Gil C. Cabacungan Jr.

MUTUAN, AGUSAN DEL MONTE—SENATE PRESIDENT Juan Ponce Enrile is not buying Sen. Manuel Villar's explanation on how he raised P26 billion without manipulating stock exchange rates three years ago.

Enrile said he would like to personally question Villar on the allegations that the Metropolitan Free presidential candidate had procured Philippine Stock Exchange (PSE) officials into releasing a lock-up provision to favor Villar Land & Livestock, the real estate firm owned by Villar and his family.

"If he isn't sincere, he is at least lying or he's just dumb," Enrile said regarding Villar.

"If they argue that before the public, he is the spokesman, anyone that I want Villar to believe, including those [officers] of the PSE, I want to ask direct questions before the people so the people will know," he said.

Enrile, who is seeking reelection against ousted President Joseph Estrada's former ally, Manuel Villar, was on a campaign tour with friends here.

Enrile said he did not care if the report on Villar that he and Enrile conducted last Thursday would benefit Villar's family.

"You can see from the series of transactions that he has gotten involved in while he is in power that he has a propensity to abuse that power to benefit his business interests," he said.

Asked about the timing of the report, Enrile said, "Why question my timing? A candidate is open to question as to the people will know him."

"We're talking here of integrity—not criminal liability—and methods and morality," he said.

"There is business, there is a degree of morality, it was sufficient that he to do what he did," he said.

At a press conference last Thursday, Enrile and Enrile presented documents that they said showed irregularities in the public offering of about 50 percent of Villar Land shares in 2003.

In his defense, Villar said the government did not lose a single centavo in the sale of Villar Land stock and in fact earned around P1.26 million more.

And money in Villar's account, he said, foreign in-

Pastor Q sets birthday bash

LEGASPI, NATALON, CAGAYAN, ISHAGI—Presidential term Senator Aquino III of the Liberal Party and Manuel Villar Jr. of the Nacionalista Party, are flying to Davao City today to join Pastor Apollo C. Quinsley in his 60th birthday celebration.

Quinsley, the founder of the Kingdom of Asia Christ, which claims six million members, had warned politicians not to expect him to announce the "dinner one" or the "can" date he will release for president today.

But he expects some of thousands of people to converge on his residence here for the event he said would be "the biggest children's party in the land."

In a statement, Quinsley said he was still waiting for a clear sign from the lawmakers on when they will be the next leaders of the country. To the Quinsleys said he had only seen a "cloudy future" on that election results, which prompted him to raise funds for the founding of a billion children.

The birthday is to be held at the religious group's compound are expected to attract more than 10,000 children from Mindanao and their parents.

Quinsley has recently been compared to Philippine Jesus into a "Luzon Quinsley" complete with parents, children and an all-you-can-eat menu, which is ready and ready.

"These kids cannot afford to go to Disneyland, so I will bring Disneyland to them," Quinsley said.

"Everything is there. It's a whole day in the three kids who belong to various religious denominations, not just KAC," said Quinsley, who claims to be the "Appointed Son of God."

Similar parties will be held simultaneously at KAC worship centers nationwide by the Children's Joy Foundation (CJF).

Last year, over 20,000 children attended his birthday party.

As for the politicians, Quinsley said "they're all welcome."

Interviewed at his private residence in Legaspi on the last of 2008, Quinsley said his birthday wish was for "peace and very honest elections."

"This is very important because the stability of our nation depends on clean elections," he said.

Some members of his staff said Quinsley may announce his resignation on May 3, 2009, Cabacungan Jr. and Arroyo C. Esguerra.

'Markets concerned about winner, not mudslinging'

FINANCIAL MARKETS IN THE Philippines are paying more attention to the inevitable mudslinging between candidates in the run-up to next month's presidential election, and less on the merits of the candidates.

The candidates said the biggest concern of the markets was whether a clear winner would emerge rather than the election being a runoff between two candidates.

Both are seen as concerns on fixed and variable income

The yield on the benchmark 20-year government bond has fallen to six-month lows, and the one-month yield on Treasury bills has fallen to near zero.

Ahead of the race, candidates have traded off allegations, sometimes made anonymously and spread via text messages, of sexual harassment, drug use, stock market manipulation, improper use of power and other

MILF to help gov't keep the peace on May 10

COTABATO CITY—THE MINDANAO ISLAMIC LIBERATION FRONT (MILF), the largest rebel group in Mindanao, has agreed to help the government maintain the peace on election day.

Representatives of the militant group and the government signed an interim "security agreement" to avoid escalation between the MILF and soldiers entering the whole area of operations and polling precincts.

"The MILF also promised to do its share to help ensure the security of poll personnel and election materials, as well as voters, in areas it considers its territories."

Signing for the government was Gen. Gregorio S. Sison, head of the Coordinating Committee on the Government of Mindanao and Vice President, for the government side.

Ready to maintain normalcy

The agreement stipulates that both sides, "with the assistance of the International Monitoring Team (IMT)," would cooperate in general security measures between MILF units and government security forces during polling centers inside guerrilla strongholds before, during and after the polls.

Meanwhile, MILF chief negotiator, Abdul Kader Daud, said that while the country's electoral system, they were ready to help maintain normalcy in the polling centers inside their territories "to avoid violence that might affect the ongoing peace process."

He admitted that some skirmishes might still be in the offing and "that the peace process does not die."

He said the MILF was willing to work with the military in general violence that could not be the peace process move.

Security briefing

London said reporters that soldiers and policemen entering, as General Duterte said, must be planning to utilize the automatic weapons in their hands.

He said the agreement was important because it would allow "third parties" that may be planning to utilize the automatic weapons in their hands.

Malayalan, Army Col. Daniel Sison, his father, (MILF) military head, and he was optimistic that the security agreement would improve relations between soldiers and the MILF in Maguindanao, Lanao del Sur, Sultan Kudarat and Tawi-Tawi at election day.

Meanwhile, in Cotabato Valley where the autonomous region (AR) is being set up, soldiers and General Duterte's army is going to help for peace and security.

The three-hour meeting in Manila was on Friday was joined by about 1,000 residents, candidates, local government employees, and government representatives and people's representatives.

Col. Romeo Talla, commander of the Army's 50th Infantry Brigade, said he had high hopes the election would be peaceful in the province because of the "overwhelming support" of the people, the military and other stakeholders in the process.

Ampatuans given chance to oppose state witnesses

By Jolie M. Aurelio

A QUILSON CITY COURT HAS GIVEN THE lawyers of the Ampatuans 10 days to respond to the prosecution's motion to have five of their witnesses discharged and to file state witnesses.

Judge Justice Jose Reyes of QC Region-1 Trial Court Branch 221, in a two-page order Friday, said the defense lawyers in the case must move to the Department of Justice (DOJ) within 10 days.

The DOJ has sought to have Mohamed Ali, Japs, Ben Dizon, Japs, Michael Magsaysay and POC Robert Dizon testify against the Ampatuans in the killing of 17 people in Maguindanao in November 2009. The defense lawyers asked the court for more time to study the DOJ motion before they file their answer.

Accused given 15 days

The court of the prosecution made by the security council, accused to give 15 days from today within which to file their answer to the motion, after which the motion should be deemed submitted for resolution," Reyes said.

The primary suspect in the Maguindanao massacre, Abdul Aziz, is a member of his family and over 300 others have filed for the member of the 17 people who included various members of the Maguindanao family. The Ampatuans' political rivals, several lawyers said in lawsuits.

The DOJ motion asked the court to allow

Shapiro and also as well as POC Ben Dizon, Tapanan and former Ampatuans to testify in the Philippine National Police Criminal Cases in Camp Crame in Quezon City instead of being transferred to Camp Aguinaldo in Baguio City where the Ampatuans and some of the other accused are being held.

The main prosecution led by Assistant Chief Prosecutor Robert Anthony Dizon said security concerns for keeping the present state witnesses in Camp Crame.

Vulnerable to harm

Looking at the prospective witnesses with the other accused at Camp Crame, Dizon said these were "vulnerable to physical harm, and other threats, psychological pressure and verbal harassment," the prosecution said.

Shapiro himself also said the court is vulnerable to threats in the custody of the DOJ's Trial Division and Security Operations Group.

In a three-page memorandum, Shapiro said he voluntarily surrendered on April 21 and has been arrested in court.

Meanwhile, however, pointed out that the court did not say when he should be released.

"As a sign of honesty and good faith, the court has been in the custody of the DOJ's Trial Division and Security Operations Group."

The police officer said he would prefer to remain in the DOJ as a witness, as he was one of those being held in a state witness.

Dimaporos still lord over Lanao del Norte

By Ryan D. Rosales
 Inquirer Mindanao

All's display of loyalty made him the closest among the Muslim allies of Marcos, from which relations he derived immense power and influence especially during the period of martial rule

ON THE ROAD FROM LAMASON to Kapatagan town in Lanao del Norte, the rusted iron passenger will remind three different posters saying voters to pick a Dimaporos for a particular post: Angging for representative of the first congressional district, Alib for representative in the second district, and Khalid for governor.

Angging is Ibrahim Quinsuan, wife of outgoing Rep. Abdulah Dimaporos, who is the son of Muhammad Ali Dimaporos, one of the most powerful Mindanao politicians during the three-decade rule of President Ferdinand Marcos and more known for his wealth and exploits.

Khalid and Abdulah are Abdulah and Angging's children, and their candidacy is also the infusion of fresh blood into the Dimaporos dynasty that seems to further strengthen a generation into politics.

Khalid is seeking to replace Abdulah in the post he has held for three consecutive three-year terms, while Abdulah seeks another mandate as governor, for which he was elected in 2007.

Facing no formidable opposition, their candidacies, including that of Angging, are widely expected to be a foregone conclusion.

Third generation

The May 18 election brings the Dimaporos dynasty into a new era, marked by a much aggressive questing of the vote to third-generation status, and greater power and wider foothold over a province of more than 500,000 people.

Except for a brief two-year period following the 1990 elections, they ended three-term rule, the Dimaporos family has been in power for the last 20 years.

Had he been alive, Ali would be celebrating triumph for having built a political dynasty that has stayed this long and is still going strong.

In "At the Heart of Mindanao," which described political dynasties in the country, G. Carter Bracey notes that at the time of his PHOTOGRAPHY dynamic rights in Lanao del Norte province as members of the Dimaporos family run to succeed for elective positions. Incumbent Sen. Muhammad Khalid Dimaporos, the eldest son, is seeking reelection while his mother, Ibrahim "Angging" Quinsuan as Dimaporos, and eldest daughter, Fatima Alib Dimaporos, run for representative in the first and second districts of the province under Lanao. Kampo CND.

reign, Ali "was a political dynasty only one generation deep, but he is already laying the groundwork to extend it into the future."

Sultan's son

Born from modest origins, Ali is the eldest of the eight children of Datin Shamsiah Dimaporos, the sultan of Mindapan, and Pont Masman Burungas. Burungas is a major principality based in a small town on the coast some 100 kilometers from the southern shore of Lanao.

Ali's leadership among the Mindanao people was first tested when he fought as a guerrilla against the Japanese forces in the Philippines during World War II.

After the war, Ali was among the few Muslim leaders who embraced electoral politics, joining the Liberal Party (LP), and then general elections under Aquino's administration. He was elected as the first governor of the island of Lanao in 1960.

In several occasions since 1960, the Muslim leaders expressed strong concern over the thought of being governed by Filipinos.

Ali won a congressional seat in 1969, representing the undivided Lanao. He served two terms of the 1973 polls for the same seat and won his seat a few months before the term expired. He suffered a loss in 1977, but has since withdrawn from electoral politics.

Ali probably realized at that time that his influence was too much with the Marcos-Lacson family.

Political break

His political break came when Lacson was elected into two presidencies in 1970—pro-Muslim Mindanao and Muslim Lanao del Sur, and Lanao del Norte, which has a large mix of Christian and Muslim inhabitants.

Ripan City politician Salvador Glick was the first governor of the island of Lanao del Norte. Ali succeeded the post in 1980 in what was seen as a clean victory with a slim margin of only several hundred votes. He was returned and reelected the year until 1985 when he stepped down in favor of the vice governor, Amador Quinsuan, a staunch political foe, after serving a two-year term.

The political rivalry between Quinsuan and Dimaporos legitimized Muslim-Christian tensions in the province that also divided the island's national image.

According to Ibrahim, Ali's "good, honest and good" record around him with many obstacles.

The rift only ended with a Marcos-style, isolated and unopposed by the majority of their voters, Ibrahim and Abdulah.

Both Quinsuan and Dimaporos are Muslim, while Angging was married off to his wife, while a son of Ali was married Muslim.

Ali was deft in handling rivals as shown in his shift from the gubernatorial to a congressional post in 1980, for which he was reelected in 1985.

Marcos loyalist

Despite widespread writing among Muslims following the Abdulah Dimaporos in 1988, Ali stood by Marcos. At least 20 Muslims remained for a mission to invade Sabah were killed in the massacre in Cagayan Island on March 30, 1988, ending the Moro insurgency in the country.

Ali's display of loyalty made him the closest ally of the Muslim allies of Marcos, from which relations he derived immense power and influence especially during the period of martial rule.

In 1976, Marcos appointed Ali as governor of the island province, Lanao del Norte, a post he was not able to carry through election. He was also made executive president of the state-owned Mindanao State University (MSU), his long stint in MSU is credited by improvements in the school's physical facilities.

In summer 1980, 1981 and 1982, Ali was elected, a 40-year-old economist, followed into political limbo by being elected state governor of the autonomous Bangsamoro Free State, representing Lanao del Norte.

Although closely allied with Marcos, the Dimaporos survived the post-1981 era seemingly unscathed, except that they lost greater influence of Ali's.

PROTECTING PIGS FROM THE DRY SPELL!

SWINE RAISING TIPS THIS SUMMER

We have always been told that too much exposure from the sun is bad for us. But did you know that the scorching heat may also cause negative effects on pigs? In the same way we experience heatstroke, pigs do experience bouts of heat stress when exposed to too much sun or heat. The reason is that, unlike other mammals, pigs do not sweat. Prolonged exposure to heat may also lead to reduced feed intake, thus, in the case of lactating sows, milk production is reduced. Infection-causing bacteria also is most likely to grow and to multiply during the hot season. This is because pathogenic bacteria thrive in an environment that is closer to normal body temperatures. Without proper protection from the sun, pigs are susceptible to diseases and non-productive pigs are damaging to your bottom line as a hog raiser. So what do you do? Here are some summer tips to help protect your pigs (and your "betta") from the heat rash!

TIP #1: Make Shade

Make sure that your pigs receive sufficient shade to protect themselves from the heat. This is done by providing shade for your pigs.

TIP #2: Give pigs proper digestive supplements

Proper digestive supplements help pigs digest their feed more efficiently, thus, they can get more out of their feed. Digestive supplements also help pigs maintain their digestive system and absorb nutrients from their feed. Proper digestion and absorption of nutrients help keep your pigs healthy.

TIP #3: Make Shade

Make sure that your pigs receive sufficient shade to protect themselves from the heat. This is done by providing shade for your pigs.

TIP #4: Make Shade

Make sure that your pigs receive sufficient shade to protect themselves from the heat. This is done by providing shade for your pigs.

Protect your pigs from the harmful effects of the sun's rays. Preventive measures will not only protect your pigs but more so your investment!

In Zamboanga, journalists died in black shirts in candles and displayed portraits with images of bloodied headlines printed on an old issued by Acting Justice Secretary Alberto Aguirre dropping murder charges against Zaldy Ampatuan, imprisoned governor of the Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao, and Abdul Ampatuan Jr., suspended vice-governor of the province.

GRAY POWER IN THE COURT

Ball game not over for these seniors

By Corbie Yvette Palencia-Delam

HE CAN STILL DRINK THE ENTIRE LENGTH of the hard court, shoot a 3-pointer with ease, make a ribby assist or pull out a mighty rebound like a college basketball player.

Benedict Ng is 69 years old and is the backbone of a group, composed mainly of seniors from Manila University graduates, who play a full basketball game every Tuesday at the Philippine National Order basketball court in Camp Crame, Quezon City.

A basketball, Ng is the oldest among the Amies regulars, phlegmy and covered in a light blue jersey, who call themselves the PUP Patriots, the Chief Supr. Delam Abino-ro, head of PUP Regional Office 4-A in the Calabarzon region, who used to be with the Philippine Military Academy basketball corporate and society team.

Another member of the team, PUP Vice-President in Chief, Brig. Gen. Benjamin, the 50-year-old Barasone captured his left Achilles tendon while playing an indoor game six years ago. Stunned for more than three months, he has since returned to the court. "I really love this game. Apart from making me fit, it has brought me lots of friends belonging to the basketball community," he said.

Three years ago, Barasone and Abino-ro formed the PUP Patriots, as they could play with other senior players from the community their age, ad-

Thai gov't weighs compromise to end protests

BANGKOK—THAILAND'S POLICE chief said Sunday signs of easing on Saturday as the government considered a compromise offer from red-shirt demonstrators to end weeks of protests and finally disband the "Red Shirts" organization.

The "Red Shirts" organization, who had been asking mass marches to replace a government they consider illegitimate, have submitted their demands and said they would accept a dissolution of parliament in 30 days.

The United Nations and human rights organizations have urged both sides on Thailand's police and divide in face of a peaceful resolution, after two blasts of street violence this month left 26 dead and hundreds injured.

But Thai leaders advanced some of their talks were angry over the concessions, and urged Prime Minister Abhisit Vejjajit to accept the protesters' demands despite the failure of two previous rounds of talks.

"The society cannot accept any more losses, our victory is to stop the violence," said leader of the protesters, Thaksin Shinawatra. "We have made up our mind to have a final shot. It's up to you Abhisit to follow our move or to refuse to end this battle."

The compromise offer came as there grew a chill to close the vast Red Shirts camp in the heart of Bangkok, and warnings from the military that protesters would face harsh penalties if they stay any longer.

However, Army chief Gen. Anupong Paochaisri said down the military was facing saying the use of force was no solution in the crisis.

"The best thing is to create understanding among the people. The Army's job now is to take care of the people, and not allow them to attack each other," he said.

Others, who came in power in a 2008 parliamentary vote of a more moderate office of ex-governor Thaksin Shinawatra, was uncomfortable on the deal offer.

"I am determined to end the protests," he told reporters here Friday but said that a political solution could be reached with threats and intimidation.

Thaksin said there was no pressure to find a separate resolution to the long-running standoff, which has damaged Thailand's economy and its reputation as the tourism friendly "Land of Smiles."

"Both sides are going to have to move toward the middle," said Abhisit Shin from the Abhisit Foundation, saying that the Thai position was unbalanced by the violence to end it, writing demands at their rallies.

"I think, on the government's side, there's the political will. On the Red Shirts side, they have been forced into this, they have no choice."

Thaksin Anupong Paochaisri, Army spokesman Gov. Anupong Paochaisri kept up the pressure on lawmakers, saying an offensive could still be launched to target both hard-liners who he referred to as "barbarians."

"If the agreement time, it would not be a compromise on those terms. At the moment the conditions are not right but I'm sure that if we can get some point on our conditions."

The Red Shirts understood the fragile nature of the steps toward a solution, announcing they would be in the military's hands in the military's hands were being mobilized for a crackdown on the protesters.

"We must be clear today, in terms and the day after will be decided for us," he said.

RED SHIRT protesters' activities made up of street demonstrations Bangkok April 26. Thailand's Army and intelligence agencies made tactical police officers moving to end a housing crackdown on a group of students that left 21 people dead after the city.

to be decided for us," he said. "We are ready to fight to the death against the violent government," said leader Anupong Paochaisri. "I have learned that the government is ready to solve the problem through negotiations, but it doesn't mean everything will be settled in talks."

Abhisit continued from violence on Thursday that saw a series of grenade blasts sent through a protest march, saying the attacks, which left one dead and scores injured, showed a lack of military people.

Thaksin has been held for April 30 charges, quoted by a leader attempt to dislodge protesters from their original rally here in Bangkok's historic district, which is targeted by police that killed 25 and injured 800.

Arizona gov signs toughest immigration law

PHOENIX, ARIZONA Gov. Jan Brewer on Friday signed a law to allow the state to deport immigrants who are in the United States without proper papers.

The law, which President Barack Obama signed on as a "borderless" effort that showed the need for national reform.

But the law also states that Mexico will not be required to determine if people are in the country illegally if there is "no credible evidence" that the state can prove they are not.

Immigration is a highly controversial issue in the United States, where some 10.5 million illegal immigrants live and work in the country, but the law also states that the federal government will not be required to determine if people are in the country illegally if there is "no credible evidence" that the state can prove they are not.

Iraq's deadliest day this year: Wave of bomb attacks kill 69

BAGHDAD—THE BLOODIEST DAY OF THE YEAR IN Iraq left at least 69 people dead in a series of bombings in mainly Shiite areas on Friday—concocted attacks seen as demonstrating the resilience of the Sunni-led insurgency after the slaying of two al-Qaida leaders last weekend.

No one has taken responsibility for the blasts, but officials were quick to blame Sunni-led insurgent groups for the attacks at a particularly fragile time as Iraq seeks formation of a new government and prepares for US troops to go home by the end of next year.

The presumed political wrangling since controversial March 7 elections has raised fears of sectarian violence akin to the riots at the height of the war.

Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki led out of the leadership in a statement Friday night, saying the bombings were a sign to fight back after Iraq security forces killed the two al-Qaida in Iraq leaders on April 10.

"The cowardly terrorist attacks that occurred today were intended to weaken the government and to weaken the security forces through the killing of our leaders of violence and terrorism," al-Maliki said.

He also called on Iraqis to stand firm against terrorism, former members of the Baath Party that ruled Iraq under Saddam Hussein. The term "Baathists" refers to a particular class of people who have been active in the insurgency since the 1960s.

April 21 was the deadliest day in Iraq's history since the 2003 invasion, with 69 people killed and 140 wounded, according to hospital and police officials who spoke on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to talk to the media.

April 21, 2003, was the day that the world's largest oil spill began.

Belgium's longest-serving bishop resigns after admitting sex abuse

BRUSSELS—THE LONGEST-SERVING bishop in Belgium resigned on Friday after admitting to sexually abusing a boy in his diocese during the 1960s.

The development added to a series of revelations that have damaged the credibility of the Roman Catholic Church and shaken the faith of many believers in their spiritual leaders.

In a statement issued by the Vatican on Friday, Pope Benedict XVI said that the bishop had admitted to sexually abusing a boy in his diocese during the 1960s.

This week, in a rare public confession, Pope Benedict XVI admitted that the Church would take action to deal with the crisis.

Belgium is the first European country to admit to sexual abuse in several European countries. Bishops elsewhere have resigned, though, on Thursday the Church authorities in Germany and the Netherlands admitted to sexual abuse in several European countries.

On the same day, the Vatican said the Pope had accepted the resignation of Bishop Jan Van der Vliet of Antwerp and Leuven, Belgium. Bishop Van der Vliet had been accused of sexual abuse in several European countries.

NIRO—BOUNCE BURNS WISLEY 50 AND he Yangtze up the point yesterday, allowing Indonesian GM Nasser Magsaysay to tie there for the lead in the 9th Asian Individual Chess Championship at the Asian Indoor Games and Convention Center.

Magsaysay also agreed to a draw with Chinese GM Li Chao today, keeping pace with the 16-year-old son and the 15-year-old Yu at 3.5 points after three rounds of play.

Handling draw, he opted for the Sicilian Najdorf variation and accepted Yu's draw offer after 28 moves in their top board encounter.

The draw halted draw rate at three in the $50,000 tournament organized by the National Chess Federation of the Philippines to select the representation in next year's World Chess Cup in Ekaterinburg, Russia.

"There were really no winning lines," said Yu, noting that they also split the point in last year's edition of the encounter where Yu eventually finished third with 7.25 points and his leaded son of the male 16 with 6.5 points.

In the end, both Yu, who 2009 Chinese Open Group C, 15-16, and Yu, the 2004 under-19 world champion, have a quarter, two rooks and four pawns each.

The 21-year-old Li, winner of the 2007 PGMA Cup in 2007 and the 2009 Philippine Internet Chess Open also tied here, has 3.5 points in the company of Myanmar GM Ding Liren and Yu Hui, who also drew their games. Zhou Weng and Filipino GM Ben-Lay Lay.

Playdowns started competitor Lee Yiping while Luqi finished his effort by finishing below Olympian IM Glenn Gil-maling.

Olympiad-bound GMs Ronghai "Tony" Antonio and John Paul Unzueta and IM-challenger Ronald Sison were still trying to extend the full point against Mongolian Challenger, Iranian Aydin Gholizadeh and Indian Marathi Rapid Swelin, respectively.

In the women's division, Chinese IM Wang Yi kept top spot following a draw with compatriot WGM Ding Yubo.

Wang improved to 3.5 points while Ding climbed to 3.0 points, half a point ahead of Vietnamese WGM Nguyen Thi Thu An and Chinese WGM Ju Wenjun.

Nepalese earned second seed GM Prithwish Pradhan of India late Friday as early up with the son of 3.0 points. Sixteen-year-old Indonesian GM Glor-Ribarbo while Yu faced Indian IM S.R. Sureshbabu.

GM candidate Ronald Sison reached WGM Boar of India to join the group of female.

India's first GM Ronghai Sison and his Indian Sison yielded in Pseudo Chess of 100 and GM Li Chao of China, respectively.

The nine-round encounter is being supported by the Philippine Sports Commission, Department of Tourism, PCOG, Pagar and the Indian Key Management Authority.

Jaime Zobel de Ayala—Pinoy arts and culture's biggest fan

He's all fired up about learning, connecting with Filipinos abroad and loving the land and heritage he calls home

By Alex T. Vargas

I'M NOT ASHAMED TO SHUSH people every time they become too noisy during a performance. But I also love the idea of artists having direct exchanges with people. I want them to mingle with the crowd."

That's Jaime Zobel de Ayala speaking, and you know he's put his money where his heart is. Long before other companies started investing in private museums, the company he founded already had the Ayala Museum. And the Ayala group of malls, then known as Modern Commercial Centers, was the first of its kind to display art pieces in public areas.

For someone who, having being interrupted at the scene of a live performance, is it a concert or play, it seems quite ironic that Zobel and his collaborators chose the fairly recent Ayala malls as venues for the sprawling "Great Filipino" series, a four-month-long series of art pieces at the Ayala malls highlighting Filipino excellence in various art forms, including a series of star-studded concerts dubbed as "Great Filipino Festivals."

But it's this concept of making art more accessible to everybody that has made the mall, the country's 21st-century expression of the town plaza, the best place to stage shows and exhibits to reach out to more people, he believes.

"Great Filipino," which debuted in 2008, is Zobel's brainchild—a way to "bring art and culture to the masses," he explained.

Cultural awareness is quite strong among other Southeast Asian countries, he added. "While we Filipinos are on cruise. After spending too many years leaving others, we hardly know how much we have to go."

Jaime Zobel de Ayala-Pino y and culture's biggest fan

Interview
Jaime Zobel de Ayala-Pino
 The former Philippine ambassador to the United States is a passionate advocate for the arts and culture. In this interview, she discusses her role in promoting Philippine arts and culture abroad, her personal interests, and her vision for the future of the arts in the Philippines.

Q: How did you get involved in the arts and culture?
A: I have been involved in the arts and culture since I was a child. I was always drawn to the performing arts, and I studied dance and music. Later, I became a teacher and then a principal of a performing arts school. My passion for the arts has been a constant throughout my life.

Q: What role do you see for the arts and culture in the Philippines?
A: The arts and culture are an integral part of our identity as a nation. They are a reflection of our values, beliefs, and traditions. It is our responsibility to preserve and promote our arts and culture, and to ensure that they continue to thrive in the future.

Q: How do you see the role of the government in supporting the arts and culture?
A: The government has a crucial role to play in supporting the arts and culture. It should provide funding, create policies, and establish institutions that promote and protect our arts and culture. It should also encourage private sector involvement and public participation.

Q: What are some of the challenges you face in promoting the arts and culture?
A: There are many challenges, including limited funding, lack of infrastructure, and a lack of public awareness. It is often difficult to get the government and the public to take the arts and culture seriously. However, I believe that with persistence and dedication, we can overcome these challenges and build a strong arts and culture sector.

Full moon at Meteora

A FEW WEEKS BEFORE the Lenten fast, we gathered up a few friends for cocktails, dinner, therapeutic group, but the reason we were there that night was the beauty and the privacy of the place. You can have the place all to yourselves.

On the terrace that seems to hover above the island that lake and oceans, we had drinks and dinner in the sun. The place was built like a Mediterranean villa overlooking the Mediterranean, except here, it's the lake that's a lighter blue than the Mediterranean. Two white columns are designed and built like a pair of tall, slender, organically shaped, columns that the house was built around. The villa is a simple, elegant, and modern design. New luxe resort lures tourists to north Luzon

THE LITTLE BANGKOK white beach

Text and photos by Anne A. Jurek

PROCKED ON A 1,000-FOOT CLIFF overlooking the South China Sea is a postcard-perfect white-sand beach tucked into windows and doors. In historic architecture inspired by the island of Samau, Taiwan, the only five-star hotel north of the Philippine mainland is a luxury destination far away, quite literally, from the chaos of urban living.

Located at Puerto Princesa, near Fernando, La Union, Thousandbush Resorts has a striking blue dome-in design highlights—also known as its signature color. Branded it is a retreat where the Santorini Lounge, a bar, and the Mediterranean Terrace, a dining room, are located. Both offer a scenic view of the ocean.

A resorters' paradise with all the bells and whistles before an infinity pool for adults and a separate children's pool. A half-mile-long area for rent the entire of the pool serves refreshments to guests. In the pool area is a basketball court, and beyond it, a private beachfront that meets the beach-club.

THE INFINITY pool

Inspired by a Greek island, this is the latest getaway destination

On a beach, the resort is already planning to expand to a full 10-hole course.

One just to play a good game of golf, and there. The resort is already planning to expand to a full 10-hole course.

Natural environment

The property is designed to be a natural environment. The old town has been kept where they've been moved, and there are no new buildings. This is part of the company's commitment to help preserve the environment. (Another advantage is the life preservation.)

Within the property is the Pines Garden, open 24 hours a day. Nearby is the Vegetables Club, which offers Asian cuisine, and the Cabana bar, with live band music provided by local and Manila-based artists.

The resort also offers a spa, but just a few days before the resort is open, a new hotel and a trail away from the resort are available, and a gym is in the pipeline.

In September, there have been the resort's of the north's favorite wedding destinations.

Escalades South Metro: Far from the madding crowd

Living in the city is not easy unless you have lungs of steel. With towering steel and glass structures, sprawling multilevels and concrete megastructures dominating the landscape, today's cities breathe have become an impossible feat. For the poor urban warriors who have to deal with the traffic snarl, polluted waterways and congested streets that have become par for the course in the concrete jungle.

It's not surprising that many of these are now looking elsewhere for a sanctuary where they can relax and unwind, away from the madding crowd.

As such, there couldn't have been a better time for Robinsons Land Corporation to launch its latest project.

Room to breathe

Escalades South Metro is a condominium community, tucked into the quieter side of Sucat, just outside the metropolis. Located along Ilustrado Road, less than 10 minutes' drive, the property is far enough from the city to provide relief from the urban crush, yet close enough for residents to keep tabs on the city's goings on.

The property will have eight towers, comprising 11 residential floors each, clustered around a 2.2-hectare property. There will be 132 units per building, ranging from 35-sqm studio units to 45-sqm two-bedroom units.

Painted on an elevated, flood-free area, the property has the landmark convenience of a resort, and features, among other things, a pool, a clubhouse and a complete year of L'egitim de Bay.

But what the property boasts of most of all is access, lots of it. About 75 percent of the property is allotted for open areas—"green spaces" that will feature landscaped gardens, winding jogging paths, gazebos, even a pond—for the residents to enjoy.

Architect Redding Yu, of Ayco Design, who conceptualized its Asian-contemporary theme, points out that natural light and ventilation are allowed to flow through the area, allowing residents to save on electricity and help conserve the environment's resources.

Community spirit

"Escalades South Metro is for those who want to be a bit removed (from the) maddening pace of urban life without actually living in suburbia," says Chris Ramirez, vice president for Robinsons Communities. "We wanted a low-density environment for our target market."

Escalades South Metro, a rescaled and updated version of RLJ's successful Escalades at 35th Avenue property in Cebu, is under the Robinsons Communities brand, which is geared towards families who prefer living in a peaceful, well-managed community.

"We want families to enjoy our amenities to the fullest," adds Ramirez.

"We aim to foster the community spirit, where everyone knows each other and is involved in the neighborhood activities," says Ramon Rati, vice president for sales and marketing of Robinsons Communities. "It's a place where you can have a brother living in the next tower, or a sister living in the floor above, who can come over to visit, or watch the kids, or walk the dogs while one is on vacation."

Ramirez is confident that the property's affordable prices and easy-payment terms would be equally attractive to starting families and young professionals as well as empty-nester and retirees of overseas Filipino workers.

Escalades South Metro units range from P1.3 million to P2.5 million. Units will be turned over in a ready-to-move-in form, allowing owners to furnish the space to their specification.

It is a common mistake to think that the only way to get a good idea of what a company is doing is to look at its financial statements. In fact, the financial statements are only a small part of the picture. To get a good idea of what a company is doing, you need to look at all the information that the company has available to you. This includes the financial statements, but also the company's management, its products, its customers, and its competitors. By looking at all this information, you can get a much better idea of what the company is doing and where it is going.

Regine gets birthday wish: Beach holiday

By Rapunzel Sun Diego Jr.

REGINE AQUINO'S BIRTHDAY was a milestone this year, as she turned 40 on April 22.

According to her boyfriend, singer-songwriter Ogie Alcasid, Regine got her birthday wish this year: a beach holiday with the under class.

The 40-year-old singer, who has been a part of the music industry for over 20 years, said that she was very happy to be able to have a beach holiday with the under class.

Regine has always been vocal about her plans to spend her birthday surrounded by the people she loves closely in a resort in the province.

Usually they would just hang out at home, but this year they flew to Boracay.

Three months ago, Ogie and Regine visited Tagaytay City, capital of the province, for a pre-birthday celebration.

There they flew to Cebu for the same special of their 40th birthday celebration. They were there for 10 days, and they also celebrated her birthday on the same day.

Being on the road allows the couple to be together more often.

Robert T. Negulescu

For why we are together in the first place, he got "married" every year because we have so much fun getting married. I know that's right, but we love it. He's the only one who's not married, and I love it. He's the only one who's not married, and I love it.

Yes, I love a wedding ceremony coming up today.

That will be our first "wedding" already. With so many, we do love each other. I do love it with our wedding ceremony. I do love it with our wedding ceremony. I do love it with our wedding ceremony.

them. Once, I met Justin and we had a little talk.

What else do you do in your relationship?

When we go to the Golden Globes, for example, that's a date night for us. It's not a job. When I get married, I make something special out of it. It's like being a bride before you get married. I don't really show you. I don't really show you. I don't really show you.

How did you meet?

We met in a hotel in New York. I was with a friend of mine when he called us. There he was and I was there. That's how we met.
